

feet deep, why should we get labour from outside? The people who are there locally must be able to do such jobs. We should insist that the project work of such a kind must be done by the people in the locality. It should be very easy. In fact, it should be done very easily and the people will be convinced about that.

Now, one of the mistakes that the Planning Commission did was this. There was a delay in excavation of field bothies in Hirakud. All of a sudden, it was found that there was no utilisation of the project, and there was a stampede. You were forced to take hasty action. There was a stampede with the result that you want to finance the excavation of the field bothies at Hirakud. That was a blunder. It should not have been done like that. That was one of the biggest blunders. It should not have been done like that. That takes away the self-reliance of the people. Excavation for field bothies has been done for centuries by the people. But we have not done that.

I submit that if we act with a certain amount of daring spirit and with a certain sense of urgency, I am sure it will be possible for the Planning Commission, a very high and intelligent body like the Planning Commission, to take proper measures for utilising the vast reservoir of people for the Constructive work.

Mr. Speaker: The hon. Member should conclude now.

Dr. K. L. Rao: I am concluding. I am very thankful to you for giving me a little more time. I would say that the Planning Commission, if it devotes itself to the formulation and the co-ordination work, which is most important and essential, can be of inestimable value and serve as a ladder by which we can mount up to the dizzy heights of the glorious days that were once India's.
